I learned how artists represent different hair textures	I mixed colors to make my own skin tone	I looked for and talked about racial differences in art at the Eric Carle Museum	My friend and I drew each other and talked about our similarities and differences	I read about the artist Angélica Dass
I drew my friend and talked about differences in the way we look	I made a self-portrait	I learned how artists represent skin tones	I watched a Drawing Differences art lesson video	I learned about the difference between skin color and race
I added my color to the community loom at the Mead	I made art that represents a friend	START HERE I talked to a family member about race	I read OUR SKIN: A First Conversation About Race	I observed the different skin colors in my community
I drew a family member's portrait	I reflected: How did it make me feel to draw someone who looks different from me?	I read a book from the Jones Drawing Differences reading list	I practiced creating different skin tones	I read All the Colors We Are
I found out: Why do some people have more MELANIN than others?	I spoke to an adult about racism	I answered these questions: What is Melanin? How does it affect skin tone?	I practiced drawing people who look different from me	I observed similarities and differences in how people are represented in art

HOW TO PLAY & WIN!

How to Play Bingo:

Your goal is to cross out 5 boxes in a row – going up and down (|), across (---), or diagonally (/). When you get 5 in a row, you get a BINGO! Have a grown up initial each box you complete.

When you get a BINGO:

- Bring your bingo card to The Jones Kids Desk or The Mead by Feb 23rd.
- You will receive a voucher for a sweet treat and a raffle for every bingo and art submission.

Want more chances to win?

- Win raffle tickets for drawing differences art you make and send to: drawing@embracerace.org.
- Win a raffle ticket for every BINGO you complete (up to 5 bingos per card)

LET'S MAKE ART THAT LOOKS LIKE ALL OF US.
